2021 Horticulturist of the Year Awards

will be Presented Posthumously to 3 Recipients

BILL BAKER

was a nurseryman and a plant hunter. His San Fernando Valley nursery, California Gardens, specialized in bulbs, bromeliads, epiphytic cacti and succulents – but his interests included unusual plants from myriad families.

Baker explored Baja California, mainland Mexico, and Central and South America in search of fascinating flora. His plants were featured at the Huntington's plant sales and offered through their International Succulent Introductions program. His world-renowned hybrids and selections are coveted by gardeners and landscape designers; two of the finest being Dyckia 'Brittle Star' and Agave 'White Rhino'.

came to America from Scotland in 1952. By 1967 he had settled in Claremont and began working at Rancho Santa Ana Botanic Garden with almost no prior knowledge of California native plants. He soon became a recognized expert, making new horticultural contributions at RSABG where he served as the Director of Horticulture until 1987.

Durley coauthored a book in 1981 with Dr. Lee Lenz entitled California Native Trees and Shrubs, and the Arctostaphylos cultivar 'John Dourley' remains one of the most popular mid-sized manzanitas for California native gardens.

VIRGINIA HAYES

was Curator of the Living Collection at the world-renowned Lotusland garden in Montecito for 25 years until her retirement in 2017. Her many and varied contributions did much to catapult Lotusland into the national and international limelight.

A prolific writer, Hayes contributed to Pacific Horticulture, wrote columns for the Santa Barbara Independent newspaper and authored the book The Gourmet Gardener. Additionally, she served on the board of the American Public Garden Association, was a reviewer for the APGA Plant Collections Network and cofounded the Horticulture Consortium of Santa Barbara.

Please join us for this special presentation as we honor and celebrate the lives and contributions to horticulture made by this year's HOTY recipients.

In case you can't view it live, this program will also be archived on our YouTube channel.

The SCHS held its first in-person meeting in 18 months on August 12 and live-streamed it simultaneously for those preferring to watch via Zoom. To mark the occasion, we welcomed horticulturist and educator Jill Morganelli to speak about "Gardening Tools of The Trade," most of which she brought along for a show & tell presentation so she could demonstrate their attributes and educate us about their care. The tools she selected were her personal favorites that she has tried and tested over the years and describes as "Arboretum tough" when Morganelli worked for ten years as Horticultural Supervisor at the Los Angeles County Arboretum and Botanic Garden. She currently instructs the Gardening Practices and Techniques class in the UCLA Extension Horticulture and Gardening Certificate Program where she is also on the Horticulture Advisory Board. Her hands-on experiences with a broad range of tools provided the basis for her talk which had valuable information for both novice and experienced gardeners.

Morganelli knows that having the right equipment for any job will give you the best chance for success, including proper gear, and began by reviewing several types of gloves she prefers for different tasks. The first tools she shared were her favorite top-quality brands of hand-pruners (bypass, ratchet, loppers) at a range of price points, but all of which can have a long life with proper maintenance, a topic she covered in the following segment. Morganelli recommended the Speedy Sharp knife sharpener as must-have to keep on hand at all times for quick touch-ups, and also to extend the life of our tools with routine maintenance. She demonstrated the correct technique for holding and angling the tool when sharpening blades and advised using a soy-based lubricant on the blades afterward to keep them loose. Moving on, Morganelli covered numerous tools and their specific uses, including shovels, sickles, folding, hand and reciprocating saws, brooms, rakes, Hori Hori knives, hoes, assorted irrigation tools and even her preferred tool bag, hat, boots and water bottle. During her talk, she reiterated that all of the selections shown were her own recommendations, based on personal experiences and that she was not being compensated to endorse any particular brands or manufacturers.

After concluding her enlightening slide show, Morganelli demonstrated a few tools for video close-ups and then took audience questions. A brief break followed, during which attendees were able to resume checking out the plant forum selections that were on exhibit and/or continue browsing for plants and books that were available for purchase. The evening concluded with an appropriately-themed raffle featuring a range of international hand pruners donated by SCHS vice-president Steve Gerischer from his personal collection, making a number of the people even more glad to have ventured out for a much anticipated return to an in-person event.

SCHS MONTHLY GARDEN SHARE

Hot days are coming during September, but so is the first day of autumn, so let's plan accordingly...

- Maintain your watering regime and plan to give extra ahead of when Santa Ana winds are due.
- Start moving spent veggies into your compost and begin sowing seeds of leafy greens and other cool-season veggies. Don't allow seeds to dry out.
- Fertilize roses once more to give them a final push for fall blooms.
- Divide healthy but crowded perennials and replant (if it's not too hot) or keep divisions shaded and moist for fall planting.
- Begin shopping for bulbs so you can chill them in the fridge for 6-8 weeks before planting.
- Cool off indoors and finalize your plans for planting season which begins next month!
